How did the Fund perform last year?

The Fund delivered strong absolute results but lagged an even stronger US market in 2025. The portfolio's underperformance was attributable to negative style factor effects, with the portfolio's smaller size, lower risk, lower momentum profile offsetting positive impacts from the portfolio's sustainability and corporate resilience exposures, as well as positive stock-specific effects.

Stock-specific effects were most additive in the Information Technology, Health Care and Communication Services sectors. Selection within the Industrials, Consumer Discretionary and Utilities sectors meanwhile all detracted.
