

Impax Appoints Head of Distribution

London, 6 October 2011 - Impax Asset Management Ltd ('Impax'), the specialist environmental investment company, announces the appointment of Ominder Dhillon as Head of Distribution.

Ominder joins Impax from Fidelity International where he was Head of UK Institutional Distribution since 2009. Prior to this role Ominder spent nine years as Director of Institutional Sales at Scottish Widows Investment Partnership, and nine years at John Morrell & Associates and Johnson Fry plc (later acquired by Legg Mason).

Ian Simm, Founder and Chief Executive, said: "We are delighted to welcome Ominder to our expanding team. Impax is seeing a marked increase in investor interest in alternative energy, water and other environmental markets, and we are expanding the distribution channels through which we market our funds. Ominder has an outstanding track record in institutional sales, excellent relationships with investment consultants, and the expertise required to further enhance our successful sales and marketing function."
